

NOT HALF BAKED BUT WELL DONE—Wakefield's Doc Kugler, playing football for the first time in his senior year, started out the season as a rough 'em up linebacker, but Coach Tank Johnson discovered last Saturday that he could run a little, too. Jaguars Hope For Surprise

If Falls Church High School's preparations for Wakefield are any indication of the type of play that will be shown Saturday, the Warriors had better keep a stiff upper lip.

To all apparent purposes the Jaguars are ready to redeem themselves for last year's lost to Wakefield.

According to Paul Weber, Falls Church Head Coach, "The boys realize Saturday's game is one of the toughest on the schedule and if they can show the spirit they have been showing in practice on Saturday, Wakefield will have to go some to win. I feel the boys are really up for this one."

When quizzed on any outstanding players, Weber replied, "I don't think you can single out any particular player as outstanding, but I think the team as a whole and the team spirit is outstanding."

Falls Church must have a pretty fair defense as it has only had 18 points scored on it in four games. Falls Church's record to date looks impressive with three wins and one loss by only one touchdown against James Monroe of Fredericksburg.

The Jaguars don't have a fancy ball club with the breakaway runners Wakefield has. Jim McIntire and Ralph Round, Falls Church halfbacks, are of the pounding varsity, picking up valuable short yardage but unable to go the distance.

In the split-T operation of Falls Church, quarterback Sam Yancy hasn't been too outstanding with his pass completions, but his sleight of hand in the faking department will keep the Warriors guessing.

Wakefield worked on its defense maneuvers yesterday against the Junior Varsity. There were a few times when the Jayvee was able to move the ball as old pros which made the Varsity boys a little sad.

John Wood is still having ankle trouble and may only see limited action against Falls Church. Al Lederle gets his X-ray report back from the medical department today. Al had rib trouble before the Annandale game and really got racked up in the Annandale fracas. Jimmy Edwards has knee trouble and will report to the physician today for permission to play Saturday. Whether or not Wakefield will be at full strength Saturday is anybody's guess.
